

4/24/82

Bob

Intuitively I feel that we must not only demonstrate that the system works but that we must train the participants to operate without the system for a reasonable period of time about six months. After that there should be a minimum of reinforcement required perhaps two hours a quarter. This suggests that we should produce a very intensive course concentrating on training under the 10 minute time period. Item 3 will permit you to gain quantitative data to support your claims and could be obtained under controlled conditions. Under item 3 it may to our advantage to operate from a larger base with intensive training. That is use some participants for only 2 or 3 days and then replace them with new subjects.

